When this Old Hat was New.

Before this hat was made,
King George was on his throne,
Our fathers all were rebels then
And fought for Washington.
The Tories cheered for old King George
The revolution through,
And bragged about their loyalty,
Ere this old hat was new.

When this old hat was new
The sons of that base crowd
Reviewed the cry of "Loyalty,"
And bellowed it aloud;
The Government our fathers made
For them would never do,
And they have torn its bulwarks down
Since this old hat was new.

When this old hat was new,
There was no public debt,
No greenbacks took the place of gold,
No millionaire had yet
His pile in Seven-thirties spent
On which no tax was due,
But each man fairly paid his tax,
When this old hat was new.

When this old hat was new
This land was in its prime,
Miscegenation was untaught
In all this happy clime;
And white folks then were thought as good
As Sambo, Cuff or Sue,
But things have sadly changed about
Since this old hat was new.

When this old hat was new
The poor white man was free,
And every year a bran new boy
Could dandle on his knee;
But now for every child he has,
His taxes on him tighter screw,
But things I tell you were not so
When this old hat was new.

When this old hat was new
Gold dollars did abound,
And not a stamp in all the land
Could anywhere be found.
But now you dare not kiss your wife
Unless you stamp her too,
But things I tell you were not so
When this old hat was new.

WOULDN'T STAY PUT OFF.—One day as conductor Jones was running from Elmira, on the Erie road, he found, among other passengers, a boy who had no money, who told him he was poor and alone in the world, and wanted to go out West where he supposed he could do better than he could at the East.

The conductor of course told him that he could not ride unless he paid his fare, "and" said he, "when we arrive at the next station, Corning, you must get off."

The boy promised that he would do so. On his passage through the cars, after leaving Corning, the conductor came across the boy again.

"Did I not tell you to get off at Corning?"

"Yes, sir," said the boy, "and I did get off, but I got on again."

"Well, sir," said the conductor, "when we get to the next station, I want you to get off, and stay off."

Again did the boy promise; but shortly after leaving the station, who should the conductor find but the boy.

"See here, sir; I thought I told you to get off, and stay off."

The boy acknowledged that the conductor told him so; "and," said the boy, "I did get off, and was going to stay off, but just as the train was starting, you said 'all aboard,' and I thought you meant me as much as anybody."

It is perhaps needless to say that the conductor acknowledged himself beaten, and gave the boy a free ride to the end of his route.

A NEW DANGER AHEAD.—The New York Herald objects to the new plays brought out in some of the theaters in that city, and to that immoral literature which now finds such large sales, and says:

If it is true that a character of a people may be determined by the literature on which it mentally feeds, the morals of this city must be sufficiently low. Sodom and Gomorrah, Herculanium and Pompeii, in their worst state, could not surely have sunk to lower depths of infamy and vice. Fire and brimstone destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah. The lava of Vesuvius buried Herculaneum and Pompeii. Nature, as we have had warnings of late, has not given up playing such tricks. In spite of our much water, it is possible that we may be engulfed in a similar ruin.

WHAT NEXT?—They have a learned fly in Sacramento. The Reporter of the 13th inst. says:

We were very much pleased last evening, at the performance, at Zwicker's saloon, of a learned fly (one of the common house variety) imported from New York, by Jerry Long. The fly, placing its back to the perche, will, with its legs, handle a small cork ball with a dexterity that will abash the most proficient of our professors in that line; and then will perform all sorts of tricks with a light balance pole tipped with small cork balls It is expected that our California flies will soon be trained to eclipse this last importation.

LETTER POSTING EXTRAORDINARY.—An English paper tells a laughable story of the use made of an old pump, near Dorset Place (N. W.) The pump having become decayed, the handle was taken from it. After remaining thus for some time, the authorities concluded to repair the pump; and, on setting at work, not fewer than twenty letters were found inside, which had been dropped into the slit from which the handle had been removed, by the intelligent neighbors, who mistook the old pump for a letter-box. And thus was explained numerous complaints of the miscarriage of posted letters.

DR. GROSS, the justly celebrated surgeon, was once dangerously ill. Shortly after his recovery he met one of his lady patients—they are not always patient ladies—who remarked to him: "Oh, doctor! I rejoice to see that you are out again; had we lost you, our good people would have died by the dozen." "Thank you, Madam," replied the affable doctor, "but now I fear they will die by the Gross."

THE friends of a wit expressed some surprise that with his age and fondness for the bottle he should have thought it worth while to marry. "A wife was necessary," he said. "They began to say that I drank too much for a single man."

The Brother's Peril.

"Lay out there and furl that flying jib, and then come in to help reef topsails!" shouted the mate of the ship Campbell, bound for Australia.

The words were addressed to Tom Bunk, a fine looking young sailor of twenty-two, who had the reputation of being a man of great activity and daring. He had been once seen to climb a rope leading to the truck, hand over hand, and dive under the ship from the foretopsail. No wonder, therefore, that he had the flying jib furled, and was on deck in time for the order to close reef topsails.

The wind was blowing a gale, and the vessel was dashing along almost on her beam ends, with everything crackling and rattling. The white water came up roaring over her bows, and the seas now and then deluged the after deck, sweeping away whatever was loose.

A fair cabin passenger, Grace Worrel by name, the daughter of an old man confined in his berth with the gout, stood on the quarter deck, clinging to the mizzen shrouds. She was beautiful, with dark, shining brown hair, dimpled cheeks, a neat, lithe, well-rounded figure and diminutive hands and feet. Being but seventeen years old her round face had that peculiar childish expression, blended with that of womanly dignity, which for ages has captivated the hearts of the sterner sex.

Tom Bunk, dashing up the main rigging, could not help directing an admiring glance toward the fair creature on the quarter deck. Her eyes shone like stars as she watched the lithe figures of the men running up the rigging; but she looked anxious, especially when a shrill cry from one of the hands already aloft proclaimed that he was in peril.

He was a boy, whose feet slipping from the maintopsail foot-rope, near the end of the yard, caused him to fall headlong, where he caught himself by the ear-ring rope depending from the sail, to which he now hung with both hands. The rolling and pitching of the ship made him sway from side to side, and a strand of the rope having parted, he was every moment in danger of falling.

One of the men leaning over, grasped him by the collar of the jacket, but the cloth tearing in his grasp, the boy was worse off than before.

A sailor with a bowline hitch was advancing swiftly along the foot-rope, when, with one wild, despairing cry, the boy let go his hold and fell into the bubbling, hissing waters of the stormy ocean.

"Man overboard!" rang shrilly through the craft. The youngster who had fallen was the brother of Tom Bunk, who now, without a moment's hesitation, plunged into the water after the struggling lad.

With much difficulty, the ship was brought up in the wind, and a boat lowered, manned by a good crew. It was doubtful, however, if the frail vessel would live in the stormy sea now raging. The spray broke over it in clouds, deluging its occupants to the skin, and almost sweeping them from their thwarts while the gunwales, rolling under, took in such great quantities of water that one man was kept constantly bailing.

Meanwhile, Tom Bunk, having reached his brother, who was unable to swim, held him firmly, keeping his head above water, and encouraging him with hopes of being speedily picked up by the approaching boat.

The captain of the Campbell had, with great difficulty, veered ship, so that the craft was now approaching the seamen with great rapidity, tossing the water from her bows, and roaring like a mad bull.

The boat was soon alongside the two brothers, who were speedily picked up; and now all eyes were turned toward the ship as she came booming and thundering on. The men aboard were all clustered about the bows, watching the tossing boat with breathless interest and anxiety, while the captain, trumpet in hand, stood issuing his orders to the helmsman.

"Luff, luff, there, at the wheel!" he screamed, as a great sea lifted the ship and bore her crashing along toward the boat. "Lively, there, or we'll run them down!"

Two men were stationed at the wheel and were therefore able to obey the order promptly. The ship, however, could not be brought up a quarter of a point.

"Square in the yards!" yelled the skipper. "Up with that wheel!"

As he could not luff, he had hopes of clearing the boat by keeping off.

The sturdy helmsman raised the wheel quickly, and doubtless the craft would have answered it at once, but for a huge counter sea, which came crashing against her weather-bow with the noise of thunder, making every timber reel. Now she came steadily on toward the boat, which the mate was vainly trying to direct to one side. The multitudinous irregular chopping seas, crossing each other, prevented him from steering the boat as he wished to do, so that there seemed every probability of her being run down.

"Ay, ay, there's no help for it," remarked an old sailor, who pulled the 'midship oar, "we are bound to be run down by that ship. Heaven have mercy on us."

"If that dear old gal only knew enough of sea matters to stand by with a rope, she might help us after we are stoven," remarked one of the men.

The person alluded to was Grace Worrel, who stood near the rail astern, watching the imperiled men, with pale face and clasped hands. Her long hair, blown loose by the wind, hung in thick masses below her waist; she looked the very picture of terror and anxiety.

On swept the ship with the speed of a rocket, neither swinging to larboard nor starboard. There was a cracking, crashing sound, a hoarse, gurgling cry, and the boat, stoven by the vessel's huge bows, was never seen again.

The state-room was empty, and the girl, staggering to a seat near the cabin window, gave full vent to her feelings of anguish.

There was a shout of grief from the men on deck, and a low scream from Grace, who, with hand over her eyes, rushed into the cabin, as if to shut out from her mental vision the circumstances of that boat being stoven by that merciless ship.

"All were lost—lost—lost!" she muttered. "Oh, my God, how terrible!"

Then she pictured to herself the manly form and handsome face of Tom Bunk, whom with softest eyes she had watched while he worked below or aloft; she pictured his body being rolled along under the dark keel of the tempest-driven ship. As this thought entered her mind, she fancied she heard a faint cry.

"Help! help! help!"

She rose quickly. She threw her dark hair back from her ears, and with neck arched like an antelope's, listened intently.

"Help! help! help!"

The voice seemed to come from the air close to her ears; she thought she recognized the voice of Tom Bunk, and a feeling of superstitious terror took possession of her.

"Help! quick, for Heaven's sake!"

This time the voice was louder than before, and now she was convinced that it came from the outside of the ship. She threw open one of the cabin windows, and peering out discovered Tom Bunk clinging to a short rope, depending from a ring about two feet beneath the window. He was not alone, for before run down he had lashed his brother to him with pieces of ratlin stuff, and these lashings still holding, the boy was closely united to his brave young relative.

"Thank God!" cried Tom, as the girl's beautiful face appeared above him. "Thank God! quick, Miss Grace, please throw me a rope."

She glanced around her, but could see no rope in the cabin.

"I will go on deck for one," she gasped, and was about starting, when Tom sung out to her in a hoarse voice:

"No, no, it will be too late. I can not hold on long enough for you to come back! Already I feel as if I must let go; my fingers are benumbed! Good-bye, Miss Grace, good-bye!"

"No!" she screamed, "hold on for just one moment longer. Help! help! on deck there!" she continued, raising her voice.

"No use!" gasped Tom; "they cannot hear you, and I'm too far below you for you to reach me your hand! Good-bye, I must let go!"

"O, Heavens! is there no way to save you!" cried Grace in agony.

"Good-bye," continued Tom; "and Heaven help you Miss Grace!"

"No—hold—one second longer!" she shrieked.

A sudden thought had flashed across her mind. She pulled her scissors from her pocket, and quick as lightning, severed one of the long thick locks of her shining hair. Twisting this with almost inconceivable rapidity, she lowered it to the young sailor, taking a turn with the other end around a spike near the top of the window, so as to keep a firm hold.

"You have saved me and my brother, Miss!" exclaimed Tom, gladly, as he wound the glittering coil around his wrist. "Ah, who but one of your sweet sex would have hit upon such a plan!"

He drew himself up—he entered the cabin and laid upon the sofa his senseless brother, who was soon restored.

I have little more to add.

There was rejoicing over the rescue of the brothers, although the fate of the rest of the boat's crew still cast a shadow over the hearts of all.

The noble conduct of Grace Worrel excited the admiration of every man, and her health was drank by officers and crew.

Tom and the fair passenger became great friends, and in course of time were married. Now, whenever the husband kisses the bright hair upon his wife's head, he thinks of the time when her beautiful locks were the means of saving the lives of his brother and himself.

PAT'S IDEA OF SYMPATHY was a good one. He had long been trying to get Bridget to give him a parting kiss. Finally, as a last resort, he turned away, saying, "Good-by, Biddy. Sure, an ye havn't any sympathy for me, at all, at all."

"Sympathy, is it. An what d'ye mane by that, Patrick?"

"Come here, Biddy, and I'll be afther tellin' yez. When I love ye, so that I'd like to bite a piece rite out of yer swate cheek, an ye fale as if you'd like to have me do it—that's sympathy, be jabbers."

"Ah, Patrick, you know my wakeness. Take a piece; but be sure an lave it, so that ye can take it again when ye come."

A MAN who borrows a book seldom returns it, and in his career there is no turning point. The paper borrower usually forgets to take it back, and goes back on the owner who never may see its face again. Bonnycreddle's advice to a neighbor who always honored him by borrowing his paper before he had read it himself, was: "Buy it, my dear sir, buy it." "I have no change," said the borrower. "Subscribe for it." "I have no time." "Surely if you have no change to buy it, and no time to subscribe for it, how is it you waste time in borrowing it?"

A SKEPTICAL young collegian confronted an old Quaker with the statement that he did not believe in the Bible. Said the Quaker: "Does thee believe in France?" "Yes, for though I have not seen it, I have seen others who have; besides there is plenty of corroborative proof that such a country does exist." "Then thee will not believe anything thee or others has not seen?" "No, to be sure I won't." "Did thee ever see thy own brains?" "No." "Ever see anybody that did?" "No." "Does thee believe thee has any?"

AN Irishman, addicted to telling queer stories, said he saw a man beheaded, with his hands tied behind him, who directly picked up his head and put it on his shoulders in the right place. "Ha! ha!" said a bystander, "how could he pick up his head when his hands were tied behind him?" "An' sure what a fool ye are," said Pat. "Couldn't he pick it up with his tathe?"

SENATOR MORRILL says that nobody believes it possible to derive a revenue of fifty millions from whisky; "for it was a tax that would not be collected until men become as pure as angels." We should think Senator Morrill might know that when men reach the angelic state, there will be no whisky taxes whatever.

A BILL has been introduced into the New York Assembly for the erection of station indicators in railroad passenger cars.

YOLO COUNTY DEMOCRAT.

SATURDAY, : : : : : MAY 23, 1868.

NO APOLOGIES FOR CRIME IN HIGH PLACES. In the one-sided, partial contest of the impeachment case which is coming to an end in a manner disparaging to the efforts of the personal enemies of the President to bring him into disgrace for alleged violations of law, there was no other course for the Democratic press to pursue than that which was indicated by its outspoken, bold and manly opposition to the conspirators. A question was involved in the trial calculated not only to affect the character of the Chief Magistrate, and establish his guilt or innocence as an Executive sworn to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution, but upon its solution depended the renouncement or endorsement of a living principle of the Constitution itself. It was therefore no more than the plain duty of every journal devoted to the preservation of the fundamental law of the land, to speak boldly in defense of the position assumed by the President—a position clearly within the pale of that law, and which, by illustrious precedent had become an established usage. Nor is it surprising that the more honest and intelligent journals of the Republican party should denounce the interference of outside parties who, by vindictive and corrupt means, endeavored to persuade or intimidate the jury out of the path of honor in the rendition of their verdict. There should be no apologies for crime committed under such circumstances. A well-guarded penitentiary is the only appropriate residence for vandals who would endeavor to influence the decision of a jury, sworn, in any case, to render a verdict without prejudice, and in accordance with the law and evidence before them.

THE MYSTERIES OF THE NEAPOLITAN CONVENTS.—This is the title of a new publication, done up in a neat volume of five hundred pages, written by an ex-Benedict Nun, and translated by J. S. Redfield, ex-U. S. Consul to Italy. The work seems well authenticated, and, if true, should be read by every American citizen, to enable the rising generation to ward off a system of oppression so detrimental to the best interest of society. The work is replete with warnings to Americans to shun and battle against the efforts, now being put forth, to saddle upon the fair land of America that noxious system of religious teaching which has so long held many parts of Europe under the yoke of oppression by the power of ignorance and superstitious bigotry. The local agent—for Pacific Publishing Company—is here, and will wait upon the people soon to solicit subscribers. The work is cheap, and within the reach of all; and, indeed, none can afford to be without it.

PARKER MONUMENT.—The monument erected over the grave of P. G. M. Samuel H. Parker, in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery, in San Francisco, has been completed at a cost of $6,150. The following is an extract from a report of the Monument Committee to the R. W. Grand Lodge of this State:

The foundation is built of a hard, blue black, quarry stone, from the quarry near Lone Mountain Cemetery, laid on their natural bed in good cement mortar, 12 feet square at the bottom, 10 feet 3 inches square at the top, 10 feet in depth.

There are two openings about 7 feet 6 inches long, 2 feet high, and 2 feet 6 inches wide, formed in the foundation about 2 feet above the bottom, with openings at the east side, and arched over with brick; and the remains of P.G.M., S. H. Parker are placed in the right hand vault, and P.G.M., J. A. J. Boben in the left hand vault.

The whole height from the top of this foundation wall to the top of the monument is 37 feet 5½ inches, built in sections, of the best white Folsom granite, taken from one boulder in the quarry of Connell & Ellis.

JUST AS EASY.—The California Christian Advocate cannot conceive how it was possible that Andrew Johnson dispensed with something to drink and remained during the evening at a temperance banquet in Washington recently. The task may have been hard for him to endure, but, perhaps, after all, he did it just as easy as some religious papers swim in the "filthy pool" of political affairs.

TYPE-SETTING BY ELECTICITY.—The American Artisan contains a notice of a wonderful invention for setting type by electricity. Being short of compositors, not long since, we tried a "machine" charged with "chain-lightning." After a fair trial it was found necessary to supercede the "machine" by intrusting the work to a Good Templar.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT.—A lawyer in San Francisco, practising in Judge Provines' Court, undertook to brow-beat a female witness by calling her a liar. The Judge very properly fined the uncourteous fellow $20 for contempt of Court.

BADLY WOUNDED.—James Pell, engineer of the Central Mill at Petaluma, had his right arm terribly crushed last week, by being caught in a belt of the machinery.

HORSES DROWNED.—A stage team of six horses was drowned last week in Spanish Creek, Plumas county. The team belonged to R. E. Garland.

SUICIDE.—A young man, named George M. Farr, committed suicide at Sacrameto, on the 12th instant, by drowning himself in the river.

A STAMPEDE.—Forty-five prisoners escaped from the guard-house at Fort Point, on the night of the 15th inst.

RACE.—Another race is about to be made between Norfolk and Lodi, the horses to carry equal weights.

WHEAT.—4,000 sacks of wheat were sold on Tuesday last in San Francisco, at $2.05 @ $2 12½.

The Beginning of the End.

It is easy to conceive why those who have thoroughly committed themselves to the principles of a corrupt party should be determined in their efforts to bolster it up when its fortunes are waning. It is not surprising that individuals who cast their lot with the Radical party, applauding their leaders through all the scenes of lawlessness and shame by which they have disgraced the nation, should still cling to the shaking pillars of a structure founded on false and absurd theories, or indulge in the vain hope of shielding themselves from merited condemnation by a mad attempt to uphold a tottering wreck that once formed the stronghold of their wicked purposes. But there is such a thing as diving too deep in the meshes of wrong, for the prodigal to turn his steps in the path of rectitude.

The innovation of wrong-doers from behind a throne of power may for a time triumph over its down-trodden subjects who, dumbfounded by bold attacks upon their rights, yield with seeming indifference to its influence; but glaring acts of injustice and oppression cannot long be endured by people inspired by an inherent love of liberty. The uneasy rest of virtuous indignation will sooner or later be broken by a wakeful vigilance and determined action—aroused to scatter the ranks of despotism, and triumph in its holy purposes, while tyrants tremble in the consciousness of their evil deeds.

The vote of the Senate on the eleventh article of impeachment is the beginning of the end of the contemptible farce which has drawn its weary length along through weeks of anxious suspense. The result of that vote is a terrible rebuke to a band of reckless, wicked conspirators who have thus met with a timely check in their wicked designs. The persuasions, threats, hootings and unprincipled denunciations resorted to by desperate men to influence the decision of the jury, have signally failed to accomplish their purposes. The President, arraigned before the bar of a sectional Senate and accused of high crimes and misdemeanors because he exercised the conscientious privilege of differing with a majority of that illegal and factional body, stands acquitted. He has triumphed over those who sought, under the most frivolous pretexts, to bring him into disgrace, and the people have rendered a righteous verdict of guilty against the destructive partisans who resorted to unfair and disgraceful means to secure his conviction. The Republican Senators who voted in favor of acquittal are deserving of respect for their unswerving adherence to their oaths as impartial jurors, under circumstances in which weaker minds would have yielded to the influence of insults and injuries heaped upon them by their unscrupulous companions; but no sympathy can be felt for the baffled conspirators whose record will go down on the pages of history to meet the hisses and scorn of their posterity. The terrible blow received by Radicalism, in the exposure of its wickedness and the defeat of its darling schemes, would seem sufficient to render it a powerless and harmless enemy. It is not usual, however, for designing men, joined together for wicked purposes, to yield to the sway of better counsels without a desperate struggle; and in this instance it is natural to anticipate that the whole vocabulary of excuses and apologies will be exhausted in an effort to retrieve the waning fortunes of destructive Radicalism, and place it on a fair footing again, to battle against the rights of the people, and conspire to overthrow the Constitution.

But they cannot succeed in their evil designs. The flagrant outrages they have so long practiced have become too glaringly and painfully apparent. The people are at last thoroughly aroused, and are only awaiting the ides of November for an opportunity to hurl them from power.

A VOICE OF THE PAST.—Radical fanatics are clamorous for the rights of the negro. They believe that idle, vagabond blacks should be fed and clothed at the expense of the Government, while thousands of poor white men, women and children are deprived of the necessaries of life. They believe the black man, in his besotted ignorance, should be granted the right of suffrage, and white men should be disfranchised. On this subject, the following sentiments were uttered by Stephen A. Douglas when he and Mr. Lincoln were candidates for the United States Senate against each other in 1858:

I hold that this Government was made on the white basis, by white men, for the benefit of white men and their posterity forever, and should be administered by white men, and none others. I do not believe the Almighty made the negro capable of self-government.

On the same occasion, President Lincoln replied to the above in the following language. Let unprincipled, negro-worshiping hypocrites and their dupes make a note of it:

I am not, nor never have been, in favor of making voters or jurors of negroes, nor of qualifying them to hold office, nor intermarrying with white people, and I will say in addition to this, that there is a physical difference between the white and black races which I believe will forever forbid the two races living together on terms of social and political equality—and inasmuch as they cannot so live, while they do remain together, there must be a position of superior and inferior, and I, as much as any other man, am in favor of having the superior position assigned to the white man.

THE Stockton Gazette, of May 16th, says: "We conversed, yesterday, with a gentleman who has just returned from an extended trip to the southward. He reports that the crops look well everywhere, and are still in a growing condition. The showers which have been prevalent for some days past are represented by him as general, and having a good effect; the grain will fill more thoroughly and yield larger. The harvest is likely to be postponed into the first weeks of June.

STARVING CLERKS AND THRIVING LABORERS.—Many young men who can read well, write tolerably, and work a simple sum in arithmetic correctly, have acquired a habit of looking down upon manual labor. To them it appears beneath their dignity to take up a pick or shovel and earn a plain living. To wear black clothes and stand nine or ten hours a day behind a desk for $100 a month, is the height of their ambiton. It would be all very well if there were enough books wanting keepers, and vacant desks waiting for young men to come and stand behind them; but there are not in this city, and there never will be situations of this class for all who are seeking them. Moreover, every steamer brings more and more candidates for clerks' places from other cities. Young fellows come every week from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and even from London, Glasgow, France and Germany, looking for situations. Some have even been foolish enough to throw up berths at home, thinking that because California is a prosperous country, clerks must be in demand. When they get here they walk the streets, bore their acquaintances, prey upon their friends, and are snubbed by strangers who are weary of answering the common interrogatory, "Do you want a clerk in this establishment?" Let it be known throughout the Eastern States that there are no vacancies for aspiring clerks in San Francisco. Let it be published throughout Great Britain, Ireland and Europe generally that a well-developed muscle is a surer road to competence in this country than a good commercial hand or knowledge of book-keeping by double entry.

We do not exaggerate when we say that the public and private schools of this city alone turn out enough young clerks to fill the vacancies arising every year on the whole coast, and these youngsters, beyond their mere school knowledge, have an amount of local information which makes them preferable to strangers. More than all, the claims of Californian youths for employment always are and will be considered in selecting one from a number of applicants for any position. If young fellows in the Eastern States and foreign countries, with broad shoulders and bushy whiskers, tire of clerking and long for a freer and better, though rougher life, with a certainty, health being granted, that competence will follow industry, sobriety and judgment, let them come here.—Bulletin.

SICK SENATORS.—It would not do to have it published abroad that Senator Grimes, who is opposed to Impeachment, is the only one suddenly and mysteriously stricken down by a peculiar disease, immediately after defining his position, and so the Radical newsmongers at Washington are telegraphing far and wide that Senators Howard and Conkling, Impeachers, are also suffering from a similar disease. Now, the fact is, that Howard has been confined to his room for weeks, and for a long time it has been a question if he could get out in time. As to Conkling, we presume that his sickness is but trifling. The caution to members about drinking water from the pitchers at the Capitol, is wholly needless. In the first place, if rumor is correct, water is a beverage which some of the Impeachers do not drink to excess at any time, and in the second place, any person who has managed to live a month in the poisonous atmosphere of the Capital, is beyond all danger of being done to death by any poison which is soluble in water. However, we think it wise and necessary for all anti-Impeachment Senators to be careful as what and where they eat and drink, and to take particular care of their persons for the next few days.—[S. F. Call.

THE VOTE.—The vote on the eleventh article of impeachment stands as follows (Republicans in Roman, Democrats in Italic):

YEAS—Anthony, Cattell, Cameron, Chandler, Cole, Conkling, Conness, Corbett, Cragin, Drake, Edmunds, Ferry, Frelinghuysen, Harlan, Howard, Howe, Morgan, Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, Morton, Nye, Patterson of New Hampshire, Pomeroy, Ramsey, Sherman, Sprague, Stewart, Sumner, Thayer, Tipton, Wade, Willey, Williams, Wilson, Yates—35.

NAYS—Bayard, Buckalew, Davis, Dixon, Doolittle, Fessenden, Fowler, Grimes, Henderson, Hendricks, Johnson, McCreary, Norton, Patterson of Tennessee, Ross, Saulsbury, Trumbull, Van Winkle, Vickers—19.

CRUEL DESERTION.—One day recently a man named Simmons, moving with his family towards California, camped near Bear creek, and on starting, refused to allow his wife to accompany him any farther. He took three of their children with him, leaving his wife on the ground, sick, destitute, and nearly blind, with an infant in her arms, and an old broken down horse. The woman was assisted to the house of Mr. Thompson, and is now in charge of the county. This inhuman wretch is going into California, and we hope the papers of that State, wherever he may come, will ventilate him according to the above facts and hold him up to the scorn of respectable society.—[Oregon Reveille.

COST OF THE ARMY.—It is authoritatively stated, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, that every soldier in the United States army costs the Government $2,000 per annum, or $200,000,000 for our army of 50,000 men. This could be reduced to $40,000,000 per annum, but the policy of Congress in keeping a standing army, in erecting five military districts in the South, and keeping a standing army in each, prevents. It is something for a tax-ridden people to think about. Is it just to tax the laboring classes of the North for the sole purpose of enabling the Radicals to insult and outrage the people of the South?

GEN. JOHN A. MCCLERNAND, of Illinois, declines becoming the Democratic candidate for Governor of that State. He closes his declination as follows:

In doing this I have only to add that I hope Democrats North and South, East and West, will eschew geographical and personal animosities; will unite as a band of brothers to stay the mad course of the revolution, and to resist force by force, if it should become necessary, to save the Constitution, the Union and public Liberty.

OBJECTION.—Some Western paper objects to the biographical sketches of General Grant, by his father, in the New York Ledger. The Winona (Minn.) Democrat says: "Since the days of Abraham and Isaac, there has not been a worse attempt by a father upon the life of his offspring."

GREEN.—A verdant Californian left $6,000 in his carpet-sack under his seat in the cars on the Panama Railroad, and took a stroll about town. When he returned, the money was missing.

LATEST EASTERN NEWS.—The Sacramento Union, of Thursday last, has the subjoined Washington intelligence:

NEW YORK, May 17th.

The Times' special states that Chief Justice Chase has placed himself in the hands of the Democrats, who are taking measures to run him as their Presidential candidate against Grant.

The World's Washington special gives the following list of new members of the Cabinet decided upon by Johnson in case he shall be acquitted on all the articles: Secretary of State, William M. Evarts; Secretary of Treasury, Groesbeck; Secretary of War, ex-Governor Cox; Secretary of the Interior, Capron, of Illinois; Attorney General, Stanbery. No one is mentioned as Postmaster General.

A dispatch states that Forney has been sent for to return to Washington at the instigation of Cameron, to undergo an investigation.

NEW YORK, May 19th.

The Herald's Washington dispatch says General Dent states that General Grant has written a letter which will be handed in due time to the President of the Chicago Convention, declining the nomination for President. In this letter Grant states that the only motive which could induce him to accept the position would be anxiety for the complete restoration of the Union, and as Executive he could aid in promoting that end; but, as that object is now almost accomplished and soon will be wholly completed, he would rather retain the position he holds, and he hopes the wisdom of the Convention may unite on a candidate who will do honor to the party and good for the country.

AN INCIDENT OF THE ERIE CATASTROPHE.—Wm. Summers, of the Syracuse Standard, who was among the passengers on the ill-fated train, but escaped uninjured, relates a very affecting incident: that a young woman with a beautiful child of three years, who had been riding for some miles in the same car he was in, complained of being unwell, and was urged to go into the sleeping-car; she went there a few moments before the fatal crash, and although escaping serious injury herself, her lovely babe was instantly killed. The agony of the bereaved mother was fearful to witness. She upbraided herself, and in her mental anguish called upon the spectators to witness that she was not blameworthy, for she had never before ventured to travel without her husband, and that now, when from home without him for the first time, their only child was killed.

FORNEY THE BASE.—John W. Forney, for taking unwarrantable liberties with the proceedings of the Court of Impeachment, has found it convenient to resign, and it is said he will open his batteries against Senators Fessenden, Grimes, Trumbull and Henderson. Nothing the miscreant may do will excite surprise in the public mind. Should he attack these Senators because they have had a greater regard for right and justice than for the demands of their party it would be nothing more than what people expect of John W. Forney. He commands the respect of no one, and is only tolerated by the Radicals because he is a useful and convenient tool to do the dirty work of that party. Forney may open his batteries upon honorable Senators and annoy them by unscrupulous misrepresentations, but he can never convince the public that he is a good or honest man.—[S. F. Dispatch.

DECLARED A NUISANCE.—The dam erected across Cache Creek by the Clear Lake Water Works Company, has been declared a nuisance by a jury in the case of Grigsby vs. the Company, and the plaintiff awarded the sum of $1,500 damages sustained by reason of back water from said dam. The case was tried in the County Court of Mendocino county.

ABOUT 12,000 acres in grain, mostly wheat, was sowed in ~~Berryessa~~ Valley this season.

TOWN AND COUNTY MATTERS.

A VALUABLE HORSE RESTORED TO HIS KIND BUT ABSENT-MINDED MASTER.—Early on the morning of the day appointed for Yolo to decide whether she would have a railroad, or pursue the even tenor of her way in mud-wagons and flat-bottomed scows, a citizen, tall and commanding in appearance, who resides about two miles from town, caparisoned one of his most valuable horses and rode into Woodland to exercise the prerogative of a freeman by depositing a ballot upon which appeared the ominous words—"Bonds in aid of the California Pacific Railroad Company, NO." The rider dismounted at the entrance of a livery stable, the proprietor of which had declared himself inflexibly in favor of the "proposition to donate," and after giving the groom some instructions about the care of his stead he intimated by a sly wink to the said proprietor a desire to "smile" at his own expense, and indulge in a little private conversation relative to railroad matters. The result of this pleasant little strategy was a change in the mind of the affable owner of the stable, who agreed to destroy the ticket with which he had previously fortified his vest pocket, and vote with his customer against the subsidy. This done, as per agreement, the hero of our story went to work vigorously to make other converts, and remained all day at the polls to "defeat the scheme of a grasping monopoly." At sundown the polls were closed, but he still tarried while the votes were being counted, and remained at his post long after this had been accomplished, in the hope of hearing the result from other precincts. At length, weary and worn with the cares of the day, he turned his steps homeward on foot, forgetting that his animal in the livery stable still waited the bidding of his master. On reaching his domicile he retired to his couch in the consciousness of having discharged a duty which he owed to his county, and early next morning arose to attend to matters pertaining to his farm. On going to his stable to feed his stock he was surprised to discover that one of his most valuable horses was missing, and being still oblivious of the fact that he had been carried to the polls the previous morning on the back of one of them, he at once concluded that his horse was stolen, and aroused the neighborhood. Runners were sent in several directions to intercept the thief, and every possible effort made to obtain a clue to the missing property. At last an honest farmer, a neighbor, informed him that he had met a man about daylight, near Woodland, on election day, riding the missing horse, and proceeded to give a minute description of the rider, not omitting a mention of his black moustache. "Stop!" says our hero; "by thunder! that's me!—have your heard how the election went?"

SPELLING SCHOOL.—On Saturday evening last quite a number of visitors were present to witness the exercises in spelling, at Filmore District School. The pupils, about thirty in number, were equally divided by the process of "choosing sides," and were reinforced by some of the visitors who accepted an invitation to participate. The contest was spirited, and the result commendable to the pupils, all of whom acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner. Several visitors were "turned down" in a handsome manner by some of the little ones who seemed to enjoy the sport amazingly. A corpulent young gentleman from this town created considerable merriment by his ineffectual attempts to spell "corpulent;" another bachelor, bashful though fond of delicacies, missed a "honeysuckle," and was greeted with an audible smile that followed his disappointment. The school, under the charge of Mr. Hughes, seems to be in a prosperous condition.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday last F. Slocum met with a painful accident while riding a young and spirited animal which he was breaking. Just after crossing the bridge near Cacheville, the horse took fright and started to run; becoming unmanagable, the horse came in collision with the hinder end of a wagon loaded with lumber. The force of the shock threw the horse and rider to the ground violently, Slocum falling underneath, sustaining a dislocation of the ankle and receiving other injuries. The horse, a fine animal, was rendered worthless by the accident, in consequence of being snagged by the end of one of the boards with which it came in contact.

NORTH PUTAH.—The Democracy of North Putah precinct, encouraged by evidences of their increasing strength in that locality as well as the flattering prospects of the party in the next campaign, have determined to organize a Democratic Club and go to work vigorously in the good cause. Their meeting for the purpose of effecting the organization will be held at Plainfield School House, on Saturday, 30th inst., at 3 o'clock P. M. The movement is endorsed, and will be entered into with earnestness by the leading Democrats of the precinct, who cordially invite their neighbors and friends at home and abroad to attend.

SUPERVISORS—MONDAY.—The returns of special election not all being in, canvassing postponed until Monday, 25th, at 2 o'clock P. M. Warrant for $100 ordered drawn on Hospital Fund in favor of Dr. Oatman, Sacramento, and $40 to Drs. Hatch & Clunes, each, for amputating leg of George Grimes, a mulatto boy who received injuries from gun shot. Jacob Renchler appointed Constable for Washington township, to fill vacancy. Wm. King appointed Roadmaster for South Putah. A. S. House allowed $53 14 for boarding prisoner.

PROBATE COURT.—Estate of Isom Hollar, deceased—Edwin Bates appointed administrator; bond for $3,000 approved; appraisers appointed and their report presented and filed. Estate of Henry Rhodes, deceased—order to sell personal property. Estate of S. J. Thomas, deceased—decree of final account. Estate of John H. Fisher, deceased—settlement of account continued until next Monday. Estate of James Bulger, deceased—settlement of exhibit continued until next Monday.

ELECTION.—The election held Saturday last to decide whether the county should aid the California Pacific Railroad Company in the construction of a railroad from Putah Creek to Knight's Landing, was decided in the negative. The returns from all the precincts have not yet been received, and as the Board of Supervisors will not meet till Monday next to canvass the vote, we are unable to give the correct figures at this time. It is thought, however, that the proposition is defeated by about sixty majority.

CHANGED HANDS.—The saloon on the corner of Court and Main streets has recently been fitted up in elegant style and changed hands—M. Snyder being purchaser. Its name has been changed from "Occidental" to "Central." Those accustomed to "indulge" will doubtless find it pleasant to "smile" at Snyder's.

BOREAS.—A regular nor'-wester visited this section during a portion of the week, and it is feared that damage to the grain crop will be the result.

FIGHT.—On Tuesday evening two plasterers, having disagreed about a settlement, indulged in a street fight in order to adjust their differences. The result was rather damaging to their personal appearance, and not favorable to a solution of the matter in dispute.

TALLER YET.—Jason Watkins brought to this office yesterday, from his ranch near town, an oat stalk measuring eight feet and eight inches in length, "laying over" the one exhibited by Dave Hays just seven inches.

ELLIOT & HALL.—This firm have opened their new stock of drugs, etc., and are now prepared to receive visits from customers at their new and handsomely furnished store, on Main street. Their advertisement will appear next week.

QUACKS.—Dr. J. P. Whitney, in his inaugural address recently delivered before the San Francisco Medical Society, of which association he is President, classified doctors, as Hugh Murray has classed the verbs of our language, into regular, irregular and defective. The latter class he very properly disposes of as follows:

The defective are all those who never had any claim to recognition by the profession. With that effrontery which is engendered by ignorance, they offer advice and promise a cure of any case in the long catalogue of diseases. These are the unprincipled schemers whose fulsome advertisements darken the columns of almost every newspaper in the land, rendering them unfit for distribution through enlightened communities, and not unfrequently fit productions for the notice of those whose duty it should be to enforce the law for the suppression of obscene publications.

STOP THAT COUGHING.

Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure, but is really the very best remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of persons in California and Oregon have been already benefited by the surprising curative powers of has cured thousands and it will cure you if you try it.

This invaluable medicine is pleasant to the taste, soothing, healing and strengthening in its effects, entirely free from all poisonous and deleterious drugs, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances.

It is also an excellent remedy for females who suffer from difficult mensturation, giving almost immediate relief to the spasm that so frequently accompany that period.

It gives immediate relief to Nausea, caused by riding in a railroad car, or by sea-sickness, or other causes.

It is also valuable as an external application for Gout, Neuralgia, etc.

YOLO COUNTY DEMOCRAT.

The Child's Vision.

BY H. B.

I wandered far across the glade,
And climbed the purple hill;
I sat and watched the sunset fade,
And listened to the rill;
The night-wind sighed a sweet refrain
Amid the forest trees,
When suddenly there rose a strain
Of music on the breeze.

The crimson sea then seemed to pale—
An island rose in sight—
A paradise of hill and vale,
Of domes and spires bright;
Its pearly gates were thrown ajar,
I heard a seraph's song,
I saw, and knew her from afar;
Our Mary, mourned so long.

Her amber curls were gemmed with light,
And round her little head
A wreath of roses, red and white,
A heavenly fragrance shed.
Her azure robe was jeweled round
With stars—I see them now,
As, with a smile, a wreath she bound
Upon my wondering brow.

And this the burden of her song:
"Oh, sister, come with me,
I've waited patiently and long
This happy hour to see.
We'll roam the fields and gather flowers,
And twine bright garlands gay;
No Winter's cold, nor sultry hours,
Shall chase our joys away."

She gently took me by the hand,
She gazed upon my face;
One look—one gesture of command—
I flew to her embrace;
I tried to follow her—'twas late—
The stars were shining through;
No sister near—no heavenly gate—
Oh, mother, was it true?

"Prove all Things; Hold Fast to that Which is Good!"

This Company does not desire to underrate the merits of any other Company.
